

10. International Congress On Occupational Safety and Health “Strong Communication, Safe Workplace”

Based on the fact that the technology and information age we are in now, makes communication digital and guides scientific research as such; there is no doubt that the new solutions to be put forward by strengthening communication in the field of occupational safety and health will make significant contributions in terms of establishing safety in the workplaces. We see it as a source of excitement which will inspire new studies through the dissemination of scientific studies and solutions developed during the 10th International Occupational Health and Safety Congress to be held in 2020 with the motto of “Strong Communication, Safe Workplace”. Our Congress will be held between 3-6 May 2020 with the participation of academicians and experts, representatives from leading national and international organizations, universities, Professional chambers, non-governmental organizations.
